

Organizing Email Using Folders

You can organize your email messages just like you would organize any other paper or electronics documents by using email folders. You basically just create the folder and then store your messages in the appropriate folders. This can make finding email messages that you need to keep, much easier to locate.

Once the folder is created, you simply click and drag an email from your inbox and drop it into the folder you want.

Refer to the below illustrations:

