

ThinkCentral

Upcoming Features

Houghton Mifflin Harcourt is pleased to introduce the following features coming to ThinkCentral in December 2011.

What's new?

- Reporting
  - Assessment and standards reporting functions in ThinkCentral will be completely redesigned to better suit your reporting needs.

- Administrator Assignments
  - Administrators will soon be able to delegate assignments to teachers so they can be administered to students in specific grades or schools.

- Test Randomization
  - A new randomization feature will be added to ThinkCentral to allow teachers the flexibility of randomizing content question order for online assessments.

- Student Class Details
  - Managing student accounts will be easier with the addition of a Class Information Button, allowing administrators and teachers to see the classes in which a student is enrolled in ThinkCentral.

Reporting

The redesigned reporting features ThinkCentral will be divided into two basic categories: Assessment or Standards. These two paths will allow administrators and teachers to easily click through to detailed information from district-level to student-level.

District Level Report

Available to District Administrators, this report provides an overview of school performance across the district.

School Level Report

Available to District and School Administrators, this report provides a more detailed picture of performance at a particular school.

Teacher Level Report

Available to administrators and teachers, this report provides an overview of class performance for a specific teacher.

Class Level Report

This report provides a more detailed view of the performance of a single class.

Student Level Report

This report provides a comprehensive view of a single student's performance.

Administrator Assignments

This new feature allows administrators to delegate assessments and resources to teachers for creating assignments.

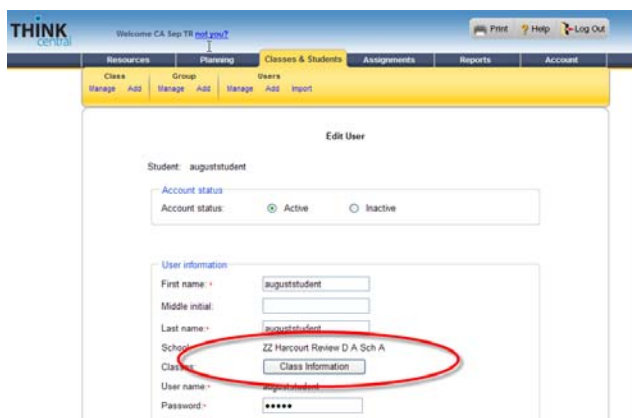

Teachers will access and assign these materials through their Assignments tab.

Test Randomization

The new Test Randomization feature gives teachers the added flexibility to have online assessments display questions in a random order when administered.

Student Class Details

A new Class Information button within the manage users function will allow administrators and teachers to see the ThinkCentral classes for a particular student.
